POLICY CONTEXT

On occasion employees may have a problem or a concern about their work, or working conditions that they have not been able to resolve through informal discussions or routes with their line manager.

This policy allows employees to raise workplace related complaints with their manager through an informal/formal process.

The Trust is committed to creating a culture of openness and recognises that employees from time to time may wish to raise concerns about their treatment or work. The Trust policy states that all employees should be given a fair hearing concerning any grievance or dispute they may wish to raise with regards to their employment.

POLICY REQUIREMENT (see Section 2)

When Grievances or Disputes are lodged, it is the responsibility of the relevant manager(s) to follow the procedures within the Grievance and Disputes Policy with advice and guidance from the People Team. It is the responsibility of both managers and staff alike to try to resolve any problems in the workplace at the earliest possible opportunity and at the lowest level possible.

1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Rationale (Why)

1.1.1 The Trust must be able to respond to grievances and disputes raised by employees in the context of their employment.

1.1.2 A Grievance is a complaint about an action that the Trust has taken or is proposing to take in relation to the staff member in the context of their employment. It may also relate to acts of omission, whether deliberate or not, by the Trust in the context of their employment.

1.1.3 A Dispute is a collective grievance by a group of employees about an action that the Trust has taken or is proposing to take in relation to the staff member in the context of their employment.

It may also relate to acts of omission, whether deliberate or not, by the Trust in the context of their employment.

1.1.4 This policy provides a mechanism for grievances and disputes to be dealt with in a fair, consistent and timely manner, and to be resolved at the lowest level possible within the organisation. It provides the individual with a course of action should they have a complaint, and offers points of contact and timescales to resolve these issues of concern. Where possible, an informal meeting should be held to discuss the procedure and possible outcome with the employee and their representatives. This will potentially help resolve concerns, explain the process and set expectations. Any outcomes are confidential and will be taken forward in line with Trust policy and procedure.

1.1.5 Matters outside of the Trust control i.e HMRC are not covered by this policy

1.2 Scope (Where, When, Who)

1.2.1 This policy applies to all staff within the Trust.

This policy does not apply to ex-employees of the Trust, however if an ex-employee raises serious concerns the Trust may choose to investigate these.

Where a concern is raised involving an employee from another organisation, the People Team will liaise with the Human Resources/People department, where applicable, of the other organisation involved, to agree a way forward within the policy framework of each organisation.

Any concerns raised under this policy should be raised at the earliest opportunity and within 3 months of the incident/behaviour taking place in order that it can be addressed in a timely manner however, it is acknowledged that in some cases, small issues can happen over a period of time therefore any exception to this should be discussed and agreed in conjunction with the People Team.

1.2.2 This policy shall not be used to pursue issues relating to any disciplinary matter, to allegations of bullying and harassment, Organisational Change, Job matching or the management of attendance issues as separate policies exist to deal with these issues; unless the policy does not have any formal right of appeal process. A grievance must relate to an act/proposed act or omission of the Trust and as a consequence individual employees of the Trust should only be named if they carry responsibility for the act or omission by virtue of their role within the Trust. Concerns about personal decisions/actions of other employees are outside the scope of this policy.

Issues that might give rise to a grievance might be (but are not limited to)

- The application or interpretation of agreements, policies and procedures
- Health and Safety
- Working arrangements
- Working environment
- A breach of statutory employment rights
- Any other issue affecting an individual's employment

It is important that early resolution of pay issues etc are dealt with in a timely manner to ensure that employees do not suffer any potential detriment. The Line Manager should consult with the expert in that field e.g Payroll, Pensions etc.

1.2.3 This policy shall not be used for issues that are outside the scope of the Trust to resolve e.g. nationally agreed Terms and Conditions of Employment, Agenda for Change, Employment Legislation, Tax and National Insurance rules and national pay and conditions (unless the concerns are about the Trusts correct application of such matters).

1.3 Principles (Beliefs)

1.3.1 We want to create a positive workplace culture where we all take responsibility for our own behaviour and contribute to our culture. Birmingham and Solihull Mental Health Foundation Trust (hereafter referred to as the Trust) is committed to creating a culture of openness and recognises that all staff may wish to raise concerns about their treatment or work situation within the Trust. It is the policy of the Trust that all employees should be given a fair hearing concerning any grievance or dispute they may wish to raise with regards to their employment.

Both the Trust and Trade Unions believe that all staff and persons working within the Trust should be treated fairly and with respect.

Our values, which will guide all of our actions and underpin our conduct are as follows:

It is the intention of this policy to support the delivery of these values by managers supporting our colleagues and applying these values in the application of this policy.

1.3.2 Any grievance or dispute raised under this policy must be made in good faith, with no malicious intent. Should there be evidence of malicious or vexatious intent, the individual or individuals in question may be subject to disciplinary action in line with the Disciplinary policy.

1.3.3 This agreement meets the minimum requirements for resolving grievances and disputes.

1.3.4 This policy has been subject to an Equality Impact Assessment. Monitoring information will be collected in respect of all cases of grievances and disputes formally lodged under this policy and this information will be used to determine whether there is a disproportionate impact on any group.

1.3.5 This policy should be read in conjunction with the Disciplinary Policy, Dignity at Work, Raising Concerns: Speaking Up Policy, Professional Codes of Conduct and other guidance as applicable. All can be found on Connect.

1.3.6 All staff, managers and Trade Union representatives will be made aware of this policy and procedure.

1.3.7 All managers will be trained in the operation and application of this policy. Managers are responsible for ensuring that all staff are made aware of this policy, and that staff have opportunities to raise issues with their line manager.

2 POLICY (What)

2.1.1 When Grievances or Disputes are lodged, it is the responsibility of the relevant manager(s) to use the following procedures with advice from the People Team. It is the responsibility of both managers and staff alike to try to resolve any problems in the workplace at the earliest possible opportunity and at the lowest level possible.

2.1.2 Staff can also raise concerns with the Freedom to Speak up (FTSU) Guardian at any stage of a Grievance or Dispute. Guardians support workers to speak up when they feel that they are unable to do so by other routes. They ensure that people who speak up are thanked, that the issues they raise are responded to, and make sure that the person speaking up receives feedback on any actions taken.

3 PROCEDURE

3.1 There is an expectation that employees will raise matters of concern promptly to enable issues to be addressed as soon as practicable, or in any event within 3 months of the alleged incident unless they are still ongoing or where circumstances have not allowed the issues to be raised in this timescale.

3.2 When a formal grievance is raised, it is the responsibility of managers to ensure that it is dealt with in a consistent manner and adheres to the timescales outlined in the procedure (see section 3.11) The manager must ensure that the grievance is resolved as quickly as possible and keeps relevant parties informed of progress in dealing with the issue on a regular basis.

3.3 The raising of a grievance requires the preservation of "Status Quo" where possible. This means that the situation as it stood at the point in time when the grievance was raised must remain until the grievance is resolved. A grievance may be raised as part of a separate process so again status quo applies. Status Quo is to be utilised to ensure there is no material loss, or demonstrable disadvantage to the individual or individuals. In certain circumstances the Trust may decide not to preserve the Status Quo e.g. where preservation of Status Quo jeopardises the health and safety of staff and/or patients or have other significant adverse consequences. In these circumstances, every effort will be made to make as few changes as possible to the Status Quo. This will be discussed with the employee(s) raising a grievance and their staff representative.

3.4 At all stages of the procedure, managers must ensure that all staff are treated fairly and with respect and in accordance with the Equality, Inclusion and Human Rights Policy 2018 (HR28). No staff should receive detrimental treatment for raising concerns. Whilst every endeavour will be made to comply with timescales, due to the complexity and or specific circumstances of a case, timescales may be extended. If this is the case the manager will contact all involved to reach an agreement to an extension.

3.5 Mediation can be offered at any stage of the procedure, subject to the agreement of all parties concerned and there may be a need to temporarily suspend proceedings to facilitate mediation discussions with the aim of promoting early resolution of the case. The People Team will co-ordinate the mediation process and contact a Trust recognised mediator on behalf of the Manager. The process is detailed in the toolkit and the People Team should be contacted to support arrangements for this.

3.6 Employee Rights to be Accompanied

3.6.1 In circumstances where the employee feels they need support in raising the issue they have the right to request support from a recognised Trade Union or a work colleague. All employees have a right to be represented by a Trade Union/Professional organisation representative or a work colleague, at any stage of the formal procedure. A Trade Union representative who is not an employed official must have been certified by their Union as being competent to accompany an employee. In the case of investigation meetings, an employee can be represented by a Trade Union representative or work colleague, providing it does not unreasonably delay the process.

3.6.2 Recognised Trade Union representatives accompanying a member of staff at a hearing may present a case on an employee's behalf however the employee must answer any direct questions posed.

3.7 Record Keeping

3.7.1 Records should be kept at all stages (formal and informal) of a grievance procedure, detailing where appropriate:

- The nature of the grievance raised
- The manager's response
- Any action taken and the reasons for it
- Timeline of actions taken
- Outcome of the grievance
- Whether there was an appeal and if so the outcome
- Subsequent developments

3.7.2 These records should be kept confidential and retained in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998 and as amended 2018.

3.7.3 The grievance notification paperwork will be copied to the People Team who will provide advice and support where required.

3.7.4 Copies of interview/hearing notes should be given to the employee. In certain circumstances (for example to protect a witness or a third party i.e. service user) the Trust might withhold or redact some information. If agreed by the employee, the notes will also be shared with their trade union support for checking and feedback.

3.7.5 Whilst grievances may not always be resolvable to the full satisfaction of the employee, the following process allows for full consideration of the issue in question. During the process a number of resolution interventions may be used in achieving a positive outcome. These may include but are not restricted to:

- An opportunity to simply 'clear the air'. - The issuing of an apology.
- Training, development, education.
- A review of any original decision/action that may have initiated the grievance. - Mediation

These may be offered at the informal or formal stage of the process.

In considering the grievance and seeking an appropriate and practical resolution the issue(s) raised will be considered by an appropriate manager and the stages outlined in this policy will be followed.

3.8 Collective Grievances / Disputes

3.8.1 If an organisational decision/issue affects a group of employees, a representative of the group (normally a Trade Union Representative, or this could be a nominated employee from the collective group who have raised the collective grievance) will raise the matter on behalf of the group in line with the procedure for individual grievances stating the names of the employees who are signatories to the grievance. At the investigatory stage, the manager will consult with other appropriate managers, in order to find a satisfactory solution.

3.8.2 If the matter is unresolved, it may be referred to ACAS for conciliation, or if agreed, arbitration.

3.8.3 Following a process of a collective grievance or dispute this should be used in circumstances where an organisational decision/issue affects a group of staff. Such a process should not be used for cases of harassment and bullying; any such complaint should be progressed through the Trust Dignity and Work policy.

3.9 Grievances from ex-employees or from employees who are leaving their employment.

3.9.1 For a grievance to be considered it must be lodged before the employees last working day. If the employee leaves the Trust part way through a grievance then the investigating officer will confirm with the employee if they wish to continue with the grievance. If yes, it needs to be confirmed with the individual if they are happy with a written response/outcome or if they still wish to participate fully in the process.

3.9.2 In deliberating whether the grievance should be considered as such, any issue(s) identified would be subject to the same provisions as outlined in this policy.

3.10 STAGES OF GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

3.10.1 STAGE 1: Informal Stage of the Procedure

3.10.2 All members of staff who feel that they have been treated unfairly must try to resolve any issue that they have in connection with their employment informally, by discussing the issue(s) with their line manager on a one to one basis as part of normal everyday working, or alternatively the manager who was on duty at the time of the event. If the grievance is regarding a decision made by the individual's line manager and the employees issue is not being resolved, then it must be raised with the next manager in line. The appropriate manager will then arrange a meeting with the individual to discuss the matter informally. (Appendix 6)

If it is a collective grievance then the appropriate manager should discuss the issues informally with the group or a nominated representative.

It is then the responsibility of the manager to:

- To ascertain the facts surrounding the grievance
- To identify what issues / circumstances may have led to the individual raising the grievance
- To identify what can be done in order to resolve the grievance (this may, however not be possible, and the individual must be made aware that the grievance can be pursued formally if they are dissatisfied with the outcome informally)
- To allow the employee to offer some potential solutions to the problem and engage fully in the resolution process (i.e. mediation)
- To act in a fair and reasonable way and based on the information available, ensure that the correct decisions have been made and applied in an equitable way
- The manager needs to confirm with the employee that they are happy with the outcome of the discussions that have taken place
- It is important that at the informal meeting notes are taken of the discussions and action points agreed, so both the manager and employee can sign to agree to take these points forward.
- If at this stage the employee is unhappy with any event which has taken place they must speak to their Trade Union representative or their line manager to try to resolve the issue at an early stage.
- If the employee is not happy with the outcome at the informal stage then it would be beneficial if it was agreed at the informal meeting with their manager the points that they wish to take forward to the formal stage of the grievance process.
- If the manager is unable to deal with an issue themselves then they will need to speak to an expert in that particular field i.e payroll, pensions departments.
- Following the discussions, the manager must ensure that they have carried out all action needed as agreed.

3.10.3 Discussions held during this part of the informal process as well as the actions and decision will be recorded by the line manager using (Appendix 2) and a copy given to the employee(s) raising a grievance, within 7 working days of the meeting.

If further investigation is required this should be undertaken and the informal meeting reconvened within 10 working days of the original discussion, or as soon as practicably possible. The employee will be informed of this.

3.10.4 Every effort must be made for the informal process to be concluded within 20 working days of the issue/incident arising. A timeline should be agreed between the Line manager and the employee so the process is dealt with in a timely manner.

3.10.5 If an informal resolution is not achieved, then it may be necessary to proceed to the formal grievance procedure, as set out below:-

Informal (Stage 1)	Complete (Appendix 2) Form	Timelines
Employee	The employee must raise their concern within:	20 working days of the incident/event, unless they are still ongoing
Manager	All informal discussions that take place and actions that are recorded, a copy needs to be given to the employee within:	7 days of the informal meeting

Manager	If further investigation is required this should be undertaken and the informal meeting reconvened within:	10 working days of the original discussion
Manager	Every effort should be made for the process to be concluded within:	20 working days of the issue/incident occurring.

Note: If it is unlikely that any of the above timelines can be met, then it is the responsibility of the manager to inform the employee at the earliest opportunity.

3.11 STAGE 2: Formal Stage of the Procedure

3.11.1 To initiate the formal stage of the process the employee must complete the Grievance and Disputes Notification Form (Appendix 3) clearly stating their complaint and submit this to the next level of manager to the manager who was involved in the informal stage. This should be submitted within 10 working days of the employee being notified of any decisions made following the informal discussion taking place. Where the grievance is with their line manager, then this should be raised with a more senior manager.

It would be advisable for the employee to seek advice from their Trade Union representative and to inform them of their intention to submit a formal written grievance.

The manager receiving the grievance should liaise with a member of the People Team and consider the need for a Decision Making Group (DMG) to be used. The DMG Guidance, available from the People Team, will detail how a DMG should be taken forward. The purpose of the DMG is to ensure that all matters are dealt with in a fair and consistent manner, and that the appropriate action is taken to address the concerns.

3.11.2 It should be noted that if a grievance is submitted straight to the formal stage without evidence of the employee raising the issue at an informal level, consideration will be given to re-directing the grievance back to the informal level.

3.11.3 Upon receipt of the Grievance and Disputes Notification Form by the next level of management, the manager receiving the notification (Commissioning Manager) will write to the employee within 5 working days to acknowledge receipt and to advise of the next steps to be undertaken. If the FTSU Guardian has been involved in supporting the concern, the Commissioning Manager will also inform the Guardian. A DMG should be arranged where appropriate to agree next steps and the most appropriate way forward.

3.11.4 Once a DMG has taken place and it is agreed to investigate the DMG will appoint a Commissioning Manager. To ensure independence, the Commissioning manager must arrange for an independent investigating manager to carry out a fact finding review to establish the facts. This involves interviewing the aggrieved employee, witnesses and gathering any paper evidence that may be relevant. The investigating manager should not have had any previous involvement in the issue. The Commissioning manager will inform the employee of any expected delays or details of another manager nominated to investigate the grievance.

3.11.5 The investigating manager will invite the employee to an investigation meeting. The investigating manager may request that the employee submits further information including evidence that the issue has been raised at the informal stage.

3.11.6 The employee can be represented by a Trade Union representative or work colleague at all formal stages of the process.

3.11.7 When the investigating manager has completed the fact finding review and determined their findings a report must be presented to the Commissioning Manager. The report should be sent to the Commissioning Manager within 10 working days following completion of the investigation to determine the outcome and whether further action is required.

There are various outcomes that could be considered including:

- There is a case to answer
- There is no case to answer
- The case is partially upheld

The individual complainant should be met with to deliver the outcome where remedies and recommendations should be also be provided in writing.

3.12 STAGE 3: APPEAL

3.12.1 Should colleagues be unhappy with a decision made in relation to this policy or an outcome that has resulted from it, they should consult with the Trust's appeal procedure, about what steps they need to take in order to have their concerns addressed. As the Trust's procedure outlines, any appeals or requests for review, need to be properly reasoned and substantive, so that concerns can be considered properly.

3.13 OTHER PROCEDURAL ISSUES

3.13.1 A manager may not take part as a member of a panel in more than one stage of the procedure.

3.13.2 At the appeal stage there will be a People Team representative to support the Chair. This will be a different People Team representative to any present at a previous stage.

3.13.3 Once the grievance procedure has been concluded, it is considered as the end of the matter and cannot be raised again.

CHECKLIST: STAGE 1: INFORMAL GRIEVANCES

Please send a copy of this form to the People Team inbox and your representative.

This checklist is intended to assist any discussion that takes place at the level of „informal grievance“.

In order to facilitate an attempt at resolving any queries or concerns raised at this stage, the employee must be able to confirm that they have tried to resolve the issue(s) in an informal, timely manner with the most appropriate person on a one to one basis as part of normal everyday working.

PERSONAL DETAILS

Name:..... Job Title:.....

Location:..... Contact Details:.....

1. To help establish whether the concern/complaint should be considered at the informal grievance stage, the following questions should be considered:

- a) Has the employee tried to discuss and resolve the issues with their line manager / other most appropriate person? Yes / No
- b) Has the employee had the above discussion within 20 working days of the issue/incident arising? Yes / No
- c) If the complaint/concern relates directly to the behaviour of another individual, are either the Prevention of Dignity at Work policy or the Disciplinary policy more appropriate? Yes / No
- d) Does the issue relate to matters outside the jurisdiction of the Trust e.g. matters relating to nationally agreed NHS Conditions of Service or legislation? Yes / No

2. Answering “Yes” to any of the above questions may mean that the issue should either be raised through alternative procedures or that the issue is outside of the scope of the Trust to resolve. The employee must be made aware of this in order that he/she can seek appropriate advice or make an informed decision.

3. Other options for resolving the issue should be suggested including, but not limited to any of the following:

- Mediation between the relevant parties facilitated by someone who has not been previously involved.
- Action taken under other policies.
- Employee to have a discussion with their Line Manager

- Alternative support as deemed appropriate by the employee and the manager completing this form.

Agreed actions for resolution; Specific actions, by whom and timeframe:

(There may be more than one meeting take place as part of the informal stage. Please use this form as a record of all meetings undertaken as part of the process).

PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED AT INFORMAL STAGE OF A GRIEVANCE

- 1) The staff member must try to resolve any issues informally first with their line manager.
- 2) They should meet with their line manager as part of their normal everyday working.
- 3) If the grievance is regarding the staff members line manager then they should raise their concern with the next manager in line.
- 4) The appropriate manager will then arrange a meeting with the individual to discuss their issues informally.
- 5) If it is a collective grievance then the appropriate manager should discuss the issues informally with the group or a nominated representative.
- 6) It is the responsibility of the manager to ascertain the facts around the grievance.
- 7) The manager must ensure that as part of the informal process that all actions/discussions are recorded on (Appendix 2) and a copy given to the employee within 7 days of the meeting.
- 8) If further investigation is required this should be undertaken and the informal meeting reconvened within 10 working days of the original discussion, or as soon as practicably possible. The employee will be informed of this.
- 9) Every effort must be made for the informal process to be concluded within 20 working days of the issue/incident arising. A timeline should be agreed between the Line manager and the employee so the process is dealt with in a timely manner.
- 10) If an informal resolution is not achieved, then it may be necessary to proceed to the formal stage of the grievance procedure.
