and legal responsibilities to ensure that all patients, staff, and stakeholders are treated with fairness, dignity, and respect. The NHS is committed to promoting equality, celebrating diversity, and protecting the human rights of everyone who uses or works in our services.

It also aligns with statutory obligations under the Equality Act 2010, the Human Rights Act 1998, and the Health and Social Care Act 2012, which mandate that public sector organisations, including NHS bodies, eliminate discrimination, advance equality of opportunity, and foster good relations. As a public sector body, we also have a duty under the Public Sector Equality Duty (PSED) to give due regard to how our policies and decisions affect people with protected characteristics.

This policy outlines the Trust's responsibilities against national standards including the NHS Workforce Race Equality Standard (WRES), NHS Workforce Disability Equality Standard (WDES), Gender Pay Gap Reporting, Accessible Information Standard (AIS) and Sexual Orientation Monitoring (SOM).

Policy requirement (see Section 2)

The Trust must comply with its legal obligations under the Equality Act 2010, the Human Rights Act 1998, and the Public Sector Equality Duty, ensuring that individuals with protected characteristics are treated fairly and without discrimination.
